Ever since the COVID-19 pandemic started to take hold around the world, there has been a serious shortfall in the availability of face masks. However, Korean-based HJ PNC began manufacturing fully automated mask production machines in March to tackle this issue head on.

To be effective, it is essential that these masks maintain the highest quality standards, and to meet demand, the machines must also maintain high levels of productivity at all times. Telsonic's ultrasonic technology, renowned worldwide for its reliability and durability, is at the heart of these machines and plays a key role in the mask production process. HJ PNC are currently producing 70 fully automated machines per month, which are delivered to customers in Korea and around the world as well. Co-president of HJ PNC and president of Zhongtai Korea – Mr. Shaun Youn commented, "Although it is only a small mask, it helps to save lives. Therefore, HJ PNC and Telsonic will continue to collaborate in manufacturing mask production machines of the highest quality and performance."

Wearing a mask is a sign of respect

“This mask says, I respect the nurses and doctors who lost their lives to this virus to save other people. This mask says I respect the essential workers who get up every day and drive the bus, or drive the train, or deliver the food, or keep the light on, so that I can stay home and I can stay safe. It says, I respect others and I respect you. That is a statement that we should all be willing to make any day. It is not about me; it is about we. That is how you battle community spread with community unity. The least gratitude you can show to essential workers is at least wear the mask so you don’t infect more people”
